Remorse

It is a strange story of protelly, remores and self-destruction that clears away the mystery surrounding the death of William J. Luckhert, who was found lying on a small mound in Fernwood cemetery, Philadelphia! on Thursday, dying from the effects of opium poisoning. Two persons were passing by in the morning when they suddenly held their breath at the sight of a man, well dressed, lying on his back across a little grave. Approaching the strange eight they were terrified at seeing the man wildly stare about and gasp. An eight-ound to the labeled "laudannm" lay empty by his side to tell the fatai tale, for the soicide died shortly afterward at the University Hespital. Lockhart formarly resided with his wife. He was a hard drinker and often came home intoxicated, when he would severely abuse his wife, and at one time a few months ago he threw several dishes at her, and apparently was going to end her life when officers interfered. A few weeks ago the bus-band, who was a cigarmaker, was thrown out of work and left without means of sup port. This threw the family into still greater straits, and Lockbart in the intervals of his drunken bru ality, became very de-pondent He soon afterward pried open a drawer and took $9 of his wife's savings. Soon he disappeared, and nothing more was heard of him until last Tuesday morning, when he was seen in his vacant home. He seemed downhearted, and told a friend that it was too much, and he could not stand the arrain much longer. He then went to Robert Maris's drug store, and, unous a prescription from Dr. Price, obtained eight cunces of landanum. Thursday morning he went to Fernwood, where his obild was buried about ing. He soon afterward pried open a drawer and laudanum. Thursday morning he went to Fernwood, where his child was buried about six months ago, and took the fatal draught, and then lay down over the grave of his young one. He was removed to the University Hospital where every effort was used to resuccitate him, but to no avail. He died one bour later. In his pockets were found a tax receipt, a prescription for a lead and landanum wash and a note book, in which was written: "Do not blame my wife. It is all my own fault," His wife lies at the point of death at her mother's home, and has not heard of her husband's death. His father committed suicide last August, and it is thought that the tendency to self-destruction was hereditary with him.

Cheap Sugar

In anticipation of sugar going on the free list on April 1, and the price constquently taking a big drop, enterprising wholesale dealers have been doing a attling business during the pest fortnight in selling "free-trade sugar" for delivery after that date at the new rates. By the provisions of the McKinley bill the refiners have the privilege during March of refising sogar in bond without paying duty upon it, so that there will be a supply for sale at the new prices the moment April 1 is usbered in. In expectation of lower prices after that time grocers throughout the country bave been curtailing their supplies of sugar to avoid being caught with any considerable amount of the protected article after April 1, and the prospect now is that there may be something like a sugar famine in

Taking advantage of this situation some enterprising wholsesale houses in this city have been taking orders for April delivery, and the rush to buy has been tremendous. Granulated sugar, which is now selling at 61 cents a pound, was quoted on Tuesday for April delivery at 4½ cents and on Wednesday at 4½ cents a pound. In two days one wholesale house received orders for 1,600 barrels, and the Philadelphia refineries have now so many orders for April delivery that they have refused to take any more. The New have refused to take any more. York refiners, it is said, have been slow to grasp the situation, but they will doubtles realize it when they find that the Philadel phians bave secured the bulk of the April

Owing to the course of the retail grocers possible the price has been advancing lately, but after April 1 there will be a hig drop. The sugar which is ordered at 4} will retail at 5 cents a pound, and prices will generally be about 2 cents a pound lower when the country has "free trade" instead of protect-

This advantage to the American consumer s subject, of course, to such modification as may result from the etimulation of prices of raw sugars in fereign countries by the increased consumption in and the consequent enlargement of demand from the United States .- Phil. Record.
